

Template for friendship certificate

This is a joke, so please don't take it seriously and maintain your friendship as it is.

Even if you're a worrier and have a habit of constantly double-checking things, you probably wouldn't go to such lengths...

It should be completed with your own signature, and be a formal, publicly verifiable document (like a contract).

If you're still not satisfied, you can add a guarantor or something else...

The punchline would definitely be,

"It's too much hassle, and if it turns out to be a real certificate, I'm afraid, so I won't be friends with them."

You can also use the certificate below by replacing the word "friend" with a different word.

For example,

- ① If you replace "dating" with one seal certificate and stamp the certificate with your official seal, it will be a formal document when introducing a potential spouse, and your parents will be extremely relieved.

- ② If it were replaced with "adultery," there's a very high possibility that it would be used as evidence to decide the outcome of a personal status lawsuit, so naturally, no one would sign such a certificate.
