

Tea should be served lukewarm

(Hospitality etiquette)

Such a job is unheard of these days.

If you list "tea serving" in your job posting, you're immediately out of luck.

(By the way)

Hot water can cause significant damage to the esophagus and oral cavity, and continuing such irritation...you can probably understand that.

If, by any chance, you've listed that job in your job posting, even when serving customers,

"For health reasons, tea should be served lukewarm."

...please say that.
